Econ 4999: Health Economics
Stage 1: Performance of the Health Care System

Stage 1 consists of writing a 4 page double spaced paper on the performance of your country’s health care system. To determine the performance you need to download data (you must use some of the sources I cover in the methods class) and create tables and graphs that describe your country’s health statistics. Compare these statistics to countries with a similar income level and from the same region. Describe the data and trends in data in words in your paper. End your paper by discussing some of the challenges you think your country faces based on the data in your paper.

The paper must be properly referenced including the data sources. The format style for the citations must follow the American Economic Review reference format styles which are at the back of this document. All tables must have a source and be formatted so they are easy to read.

You must use some of the data sources I cover in class. It is not sufficient to take numbers for other articles and copy them into your paper, though they make great supplementary data. The data tables you create must cover at least the following topics:

1. Trends in expenditures (per capita, % of GDP, public versus private, and other variants)
2. Trends in mortality/life expectancy: by age (infant, under 5, and adult) and gender
3. Trends in morbidity: find statistics on the diseases that are relevant for your country and make the case why the diseases you choose are relevant.
4. Trends in health care resources: doctors and nurses per capita, hospital beds per capita, medical equipment per capita.

By trends I mean find data that show how the health care indicator has changed over time. I would like to see long time periods such as 1960 to 2008 where possible not just the past 10 years. You can present these in graphs or just give one data point per decade if you present the data in a table.

For all tables make comparisons between your country and other countries in the region and other countries at a similar income level. See the following World Bank link to determine the income level of your country (www.worldbank.org/data/countryclass/classgroups.htm).
