OVERVIEW: This course provides a Sociological examination of the association between society and the natural environment. Within Environmental Sociology (the framework used here), researchers aim to examine how society effects the environment, as well as how the environment effects, and reflects, society. During this semester, we will review Environmental Sociology as a foundation for critical consideration of trends in public environmental opinion, environmentalism as a social movement, human-induced environmental decline, and injustices as related to environmental context.

SPECIFIC AIMS: Following this course, students should be familiar with:

- several theoretical perspectives used to examine interactions between society and the environment;
- examples of the ways in which socio-economic processes, such as consumption and globalization, impact the environment;
- examples of the ways in which environmental context shapes social processes, such as population change.

READINGS: We will work primarily out of one reader, with supplementary material on occasion. Supplementary material will be provided through the course website, and the following required text is available through the CU Bookstore:

EVALUATION: There are 4 components to course evaluation, as outlined below. The final exam will take place on Monday, Dec 12, 10:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Any student not taking the final exam will fail the course. No exceptions.

Thursday, Oct 6, during class

Monday, Dec 12, 10:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m
WEEKLY ASSIGNMENTS: As apparent from the above breakdown, the 11 weekly assignments comprise a large part of students’ grades for this course. The weekly assignments are typically due each Thursday (at the beginning of class) and will require writing 1 paragraph (no more than 1 double spaced, type written page) in response to a discussion question posted the previous Thursday on the course website. The question will require students to synthesize and think critically about the week’s readings.

Professor Hunter will make only cursory editorial and substantive comments on the weekly assignments. The assignments will be graded on a 5 point scale, with 5 being the highest grade. A description of the grading scheme follows.

- ♦ 5 points: excellent, well written synthesis and critique;
- ♦ 3 points: good synthesis and critique; a few grammatical issues.
- ♦ 1 point: below average synthesis and critique; grammatical issues.
- ♦ 0 points: unexcused absence or assignment with very slim content and/or many grammatical problems.

On grading, the first 2 weekly assignments are each worth 2% of your overall grade. The remainder of the assignments are worth 4% each. As such, the first two assignments become an important testing ground for your written presentation of the course material.

Students are allowed 3 excused absences throughout the course of the semester, which is quite generous. An excused absence is one for which Professor Hunter is notified BEFORE class (email is fine, but must be BEFORE class). Students with an excused absence on a weekly assignment due date can turn the assignment in by 5:00 the following Monday. No assignments (not even early ones) will be accepted for unexcused absences. No exceptions.

Misc:

If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit to me a letter from Disability Services (DS) early in the semester (by the end of the 3rd week) so that your needs may be addressed. DS determines accommodations based on documented disabilities (303-492-8671, Willard 322, www.colorado.edu/sacs/disabilityservices)

Please review the course schedule ASAP. If you have conflicts between religious observance dates and course examinations or assignments, let me know by the end of the 3rd week of class of the conflict in order to arrange accommodation.

The University has developed a classroom behavior policy. Students are required to adhere to the behavior standards listed in the Rights and Responsibilities Regarding Standards of Conduct and to refrain from disrupting classes and other academic settings. The specific policy may be found at: http://www.colorado.edu/policies/classbehavior.html

Both students and faculty are expected to abide by the University’s honor code, details found at: http://www.colorado.edu/academics/honorcode/ Cheating and plagiarism are to be taken very seriously and are grounds for failure in the course. In a general sense, to plagiarize is to use another’s words as your own, without proper attribution given to the original author. Please find more specific information through links on the honor code website.

Please come see me, call me, or send an E-mail, if you have any questions, concerns, or problems!
